Life on Earth depends on our planet's green cover. Plants protect soil from erosion, regulate the atmosphere, maintain water supplies for agriculture and prevent formation of deserts. Plants have fed the world and cured its ills since life began. Without plants man could not survive.

Yet, knowing this, we are in the process of destroying our own life-support system at such an alarming rate that it has already become a crisis – a disaster for ourselves and an even bigger one for our children.

We destroy tropical rain forests. Much of the food, medicines and materials we use every day is derived from the wild plants which grow in the tropics. Once the plants go, they are gone forever. Once forests go, only wastelands remain.

The reasons for this development are ignorance, and short-sightedness. The desperately poor people who live in the forests have to clear large areas for crops and fuel, but they are doing this in such a way that they are destroying their environment.

The most serious damage, however, is being caused by people who try to make money out of the jungle. Modern machines are used to cut down trees and clear vast areas.

The consequences may be disastrous. People and animals need oxygen to live and breathe. It is released by plants. So we all need them to keep us breathing.
